National Intelligence Council

2 March 1993

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

FROM: Gregory F. Treverton
Vice Chairman for Estimates
National Intelligence Council

SUBJECT: Your Breakfast with the Intelligence Fellows

1. As you know, last summer's session was the first; I had the privilege of being their "dean." The aim was to take 40 of the Community's next generation of leaders (SIS 1s and 2s), and to give them a chance to know each other and to think about the future of their enterprise, provoked by a range of outsiders. "Intelligence an open society" was the theme.

2. They're not shy and will have plenty of questions. By way of a conversation-starter, in addition to any comments you have about the Fellows program, they'll be interested in your first thoughts about a range of questions:

- o how you see your job, your priorities;
- o the place of intelligence--and your own--in the new administration, given its foreign involvements but its domestic preoccupations;
- o prospects for the budget and the role, more generally, of congressional oversight;
- o anything you can say about structure and mission, along with the shape of the Community as it shrinks;
- o any special ways they can be helpful to you.
